Stance:	Customer objects to the Planning Application
Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I understand that there are now two applications on the same parcel of land. Both seem to be contrary to existing planning constraints and I cannot see any explanation or rationale as to why these constraints could be negated or set aside. The planning officer in several emails has set out the many difficulties with these applications. The first DM/22/3875 seems to be unresolved and this latest application does not rest on any known planning regulations as indicated by the officer himself. The planning laws are agreed by common consent of duly elected members and enforced by officers to protect against random and unwarranted development; in this case, in a highly protected area. It is protected for good reason. The erosion of these protections are undesirable and irreversible.

Kind regards
