Reasons for comment:
Comments:	A few years ago my family actually looked into moving to Ansty because we liked the feel of the village and the surrounding countryside. Unfortunately at the time we couldn't find anything suitable available, so we ended up settling somewhere else. Because of that experience I do think it's important that villages still allow some new homes to be built. What I like about this proposal is that it doesn't look overly large or out of place. It simply seems to add a small number of houses next to ones that are already there, which feels quite reasonable.

Kind regards
