Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I'm in my early 30s and currently live in Brighton, but I've been thinking more about the possibility of moving out to a village in Mid Sussex in the future. Places like Ansty have a lot of appeal because of the quieter environment, countryside and stronger sense of community compared with living in a bigger city. Developments like this seem like a sensible way of allowing villages to grow a bit and give people like me the option of moving to the area rather than being priced out or having very limited choice. From what I've read it looks like a fairly small development and I hope it can be done in a way that fits in well with the village.

Overall I'm supportive of the proposal and think it could help keep villages like this open to new residents and younger people.

Kind regards
