Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I fail to understand any advantage to be gained in boosting mobile signal for a mere number of seconds prior to the train entering a tunnel creating a mobile deadspot on its final entry to Haywards Heath station when heading north. I also fail to understand what is so critically important to have a permanent mobile signal whilst on a train. Finally, the health and environmental/aesthetic impacts, in my opinion, in no way justify this mast being erected.

Kind regards
