Transportation of the Mobile Home structure

The mobile home structure stands on a special timber subframe that rests on top of concrete blocks or any other types of non-permanent supports.

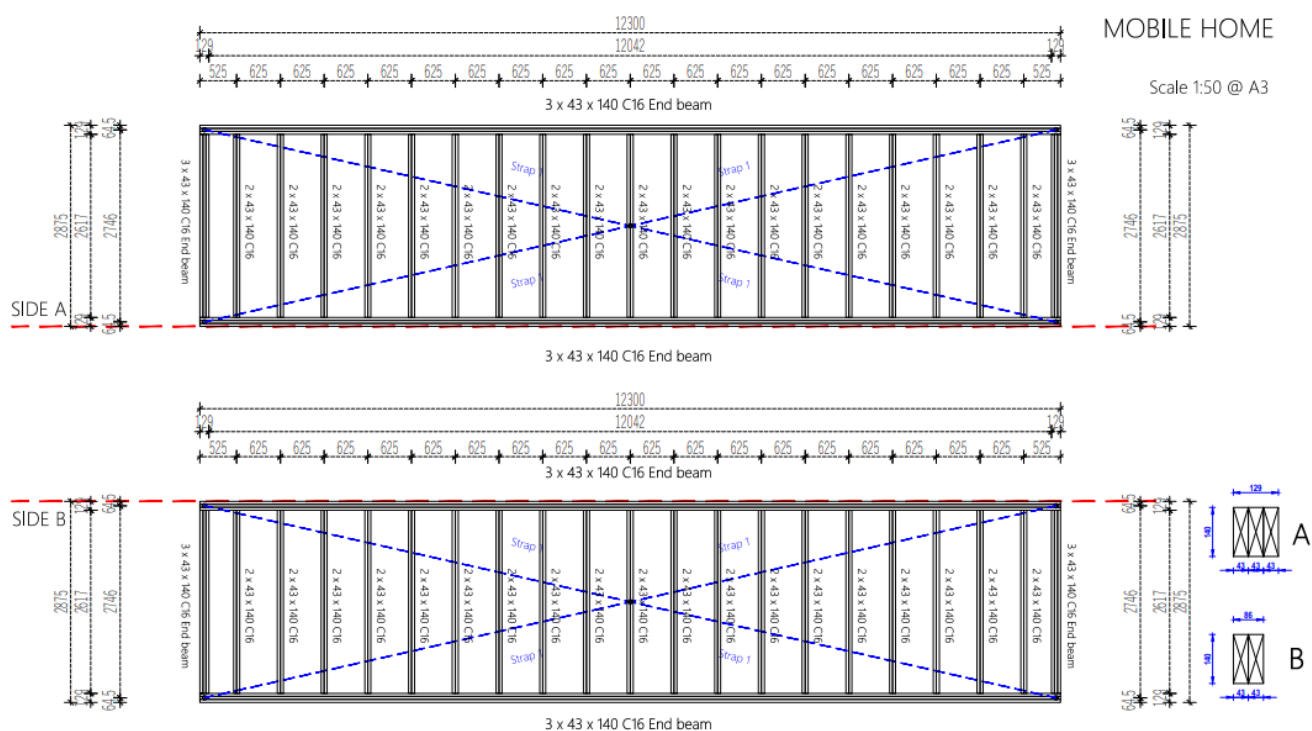

The mobile home can be separated into two halves as per the given plan:

The subframe has strapping points that will need to be utilized when lifting each half of the structure (marked in blue) or an alternative lifting scheme according to the capabilities of the lifting equipment, ensuring that a safe working environment is ensured:

This allows each half to be lifted using a mobile crane, loaded onto a lorry and moved.
