Stance:	Customer objects to the Planning Application
Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I am writing to object to the application for a certificate of lawful existing use of the stud bungalow. I am aware that i am putting in the objection on the day of the consultation but I have only been made aware of this proposal as i did not receive a hard copy or email about it so I hope our objection is taken into consideration. There have been a number of buildings that have gone up over the last few years and to now put in an application for the bungalow to be residential accommodation makes a mockery of the proper planning applications that we all have to abide by. A number of buildings erected over the last few years have had no planning permission and are in breach of planning legislation but now no enforcement action can be taken as they were constructed over 7 years ago and are now lawful. I would like to ask Mid Sussex council why they were not involved in any of these unlawful developments and how its been allowed to not happen not just once but time and time again. If the council do not object to this then it sends a clear message to everyone that planning laws are a waste of time and can be 'quietly' ignored with no consequences.

Kind regards
