Reasons for comment:
Comments:	Each time I enter Brushes Lane in readiness to enter The Wilderness, I am oblige to put health and safety at risk as I negotiate numerous poorly repaired pot holes. As I write more white lines outlining new areas earmarked for more shoddy repairs have appeared. It is therefore with considerable annoyance , that once again I am being asked to comment on a replacement fence to which no one, as best I am aware, has ever objected. I have already raised no objection to this replacement fence, including trellis top. What on earth was the point in going to an expensive public consultation, only to completely ignore the outcome. What a reckless waste of public money. It is little wonder that the general public have little to no faith in both local and national Governance.

Kind regards
