Hi anna

Further to your email dated 7th May in respect of the above planning application, the adjoining owner has now confirmed that the red lined location plan as submitted is in fact correct.

Kind regards

Dear Russell

Thank you for talking to me today.

I have now found our copies of the deeds showing the boundaries, and I must apologise as I can now see that the red line down the centre of the driveway is in fact correct.

Knowing that the shared driveway is to be kept clear at all times for joint access, I hadn't realised that it still had a boundary running down the middle.

I've attached a screenshot of this, with the shared access shaded in yellow for clarity.

With kind regards.
