Dear Mr King

Is there no way the local government can resist the endless pressure to build especially around Haywards Heath, well the whole of Sussex which I fear will lose its rural character? Already Haywards Heath is practically joined up with Burgess Hill and that town has a simply excessively enormous housing project already. The infrastructure- GP surgeries, trains, potholes on roads etc - are already not coping. I have noticed a huge increase in traffic and fewer parking spaces available. Potholes can be very dangerous even in the town centre. If more people commute already getting on the train in the rush hour at London Bridge back home can be a complete nightmare if not impossible. If there is a second runway at Gatwick it will be even worse. Wildlife are badly affected. I have noticed a huge decrease in birds.

As regards the current application, I live in Penlands Green which is already a large development. There will be a huge effect on noise and light created plus the roundabout nearby will become so much busier with likely large queues to get out. Poor air quality as a result. The land at Sugworth Farm must be the last remaining pleasant view in Haywards Heath and it is such a shame to make yet another built up area there. I notice that pipes etc seem to be laid already so I presume they are expecting planning permission already!

I hope the council will finally cease the endless house building around Haywards Heath. Where/when will it end in fact?

Regards
