Reasons for comment:
Comments:	This is one of the last beautiful areas of green space left in Haywards Heath and is much a lived and well used green space by the local community. The area contains several trees worth my of protection and a stream with protected wood life including protected newts. This area is used by hindreds of local dog walkers and is a treasured place for many. This is just another example of removing beautiful and useful green space for housing which will no doubt contain very few homes that key workers and average income families can afford. I strong object to the loss of natural diversity (trees, newts and flora and fauna)

Kind regards
