North – Roadside immediately to the north with a limited front garden space setting the property back from the pavement edge. Looking from the rear to the north, the rear elevation has previously been extended through a timber built single storey lean to.

South – Rear garden amenity space which stretches back in a linear form and slightly steps up moving south.

East – Adjoining neighbouring terraced property which utilises solar panels to the southern roof slope.

West – Adjoining neighbour which features an adjoining gable end.

Streetscene – Terraced brick built dwellings of a comparable appearance to their principal elevation. There appears to be some variance to the rear through how properties have extended and modernised over time.
