Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I think it's ridiculous that it's even being considered to have new homes being built in the town, especially in an area with so many issues that need resolving. Firstly, the impact this will have on nature and wildlife will be astounding. Building homes within an area of natural beauty completely undermines the whole rationale behind making somewhere an AONB... We cannot destroy this area of nature for the sake of new homes, when there are so many new developments already in the area, it's unnecessary!

I can't get a GP appointment, a dentist appointment, I couldn't even get running water the other week so i'm not sure how creating 44 new homes for however many new residents can have a positive impact on this, it will only make it worse. As it stands, the town is barely coping, we don't need more homes and more residents to push us to braking point.

I have an outlook onto the proposed building site and this is NOT what I signed up for. I, as do all of my neighbors, want to be surrounded by greenery, that's why we chose the area we're in now. I bought here for the village feel, as you can see green for miles. If this development is approved, this area is going to change for many reasons. Nothing about it is a good idea. Please, think of the people that live here and how much of a negative impact this is going to have.

Kind regards
