Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I have lived in Sussex my whole life - in the areas of Lindfield, Haywards and Cuckfield for the majority of those almost 60 years. So I wholeheartedly object to this new application from the developers Fairfax (who seem determined to destroy the beautiful West Sussex countryside once again) for the following reasons:- - The scale is once again wrong. 117 houses is still nearly double the 60 that the council's own draft plan suggested. The developer has not justified why so many more are needed. - Landscape harm remains. The independent landscape report found that even 60 houses would cause major harm to the High Weald National Landscape. 117 is nearly double that. - Heritage harm is unresolved. The MSDC Conservation Officer has confirmed the site makes a strong contribution to the setting of Grade II listed Sugworth Farmhouse. The developer has not convincingly avoided or minimised this harm. Under national planning policy, this must be given great weight.

- Flooding is still deferred, not solved. The application relies on drainage systems yet to be designed. Critical flood risk issues have been pushed to later stages rather than resolved now. The development of Penland Green has already made flooding worse in Orchard Way and surrounding roads - this will make it worse still.
- Water supply cannot cope. There is no plan to increase water supply capacity to serve this development, and even if there were, it would take years to deliver.
- Schools are full. West Sussex County Council has confirmed local schools do not have capacity. S106 contributions do not guarantee school places will be delivered in time.
- Roads cannot cope. Local roads are narrow and already at or near capacity. The roundabout, despite being slightly smaller, remains urbanising and out of character with the surrounding rural road network.
- The site is still not in the current District Plan. Applying for Outline Planning Permission before the site is even confirmed in the District Plan is an attempt to get a foot in the door.

Yours faithfully

Kind regards
