Reasons for comment:
Comments:	Hello I have just read about the Dormice living on this land. Haywards Heath is meant to be a rural area town with access to nature. It is growing too fast and with cheap developments that do not consider nature. The infrastructure is inadequate with poor access for pedestrians. Cars are prioritised. No room for new patients at the GP surgeries and no room at the primary schools. With hurstwood housing and Wivelsfield housing there will be no greenery left and traffic is already horrible on roads to fox hill areas. Nature in the UK is in terrible decline. Please consider these factors.

Kind regards
