Comments:

I strongly object to outline planning permission being granted for 200 houses on the proposed Foxhole Farm site at Bolney for the following reasons:

- Building 200 houses on agricultural land outside the built-up area boundary of Bolney, which would almost double the number of dwellings in the central core of the village, is disproportionate and would be completely out of character with the setting.
- This proposed development would harm the rural setting and views of the village.
- Access to the proposed site is opposite a petrol station and several dwellings on the A272. This stretch of road is extremely busy and there are already numerous near-misses and shunts that are not noted in the official statistics but confirmed by local residents. Bolney does not benefit from any important services, so that those living in the new development would have to use their personal vehicles to visit doctors, dentists, a post office, railway stations and large shops in the area. This would only add to congestion on the A272, and thus increase the risk of collisions and major accidents.
- The addition of a ghost island at entry into the site will further exacerbate problems of congestion along this major east-west trunk road.
- Bus services are insufficient to enable their use to reach local services and employment hubs on a regular basis.
- A development of 200 dwellings is too small to merit the inclusion of services that would benefit the village as a whole (such as a doctor's surgery). The developer's proposals of a community hub (to be used by a charity), allotments and orchards will not benefit the Bolney community.

I therefore strongly object to this outline planning application and urge Mid Sussex District Council not to grant it.

Kind regards
