Reasons for comment:

Comments:	I am extremely worried by the proposed abattoir at Naked Farm. I frequently come to Warninglid for dog walks and to enjoy the village and The Half Moon pub. This plan risks ruining the unique tranquil character of the local footpaths, and village life. Birdsong and babbling water could be replaced with the buzzing and thrumming of commercial refrigerators 24/7, and the screams of distressed animals and operational clattering of the proposed roller shutters, hoists, clamps, saws, and chains. It will cause severe noise pollution of a very disturbing nature.

I have walked all over the High Weald National Landscape and natural beauty and tranquility are integral to bringing in people like me to the area. This beauty and tranquility are actually protected by law. The introduction of an industrial abattoir operation directly threatens this baseline peace at a time when people need it more than ever to escape the incessant distractions and noise of everyday life.

Thinking of the heatwave we just experienced, I am also worried about the smells and flies that will be attracted in their thousands to lay eggs into the guts and other discarded parts. These flies and rotting smells will be very unpleasant and fundamentally degrade the area for local and visitors.

Air pollution drifting across popular walking routes ruins outings. I actively avoid places that are polluted and degraded. But I would hate to think that I would no longer get to enjoy local landmarks like the historic village pond and the network of paths and streams running around Williams Wood. It will also directly impact the outdoor amenity of community hubs like the Half Moon pub.

Introducing industrial processing noises and agricultural slaughter odours into such a sensitive, highly visited rural setting completely undermines the area's tranquil character and should be refused.

You are the guardians of the peace, beauty and tranquility of the area, and have a responsibility not only to protect it, but to enhance it. Please reject this proposal.

Kind regards
