Reasons for comment:
Comments:	This is a rural area that had already seen excessive development in the fields south of this location. It is adjacent to an extensive area of public land and provides habitat to increasingly persecuted local wildlife.

I believe an application for a few more houses on top of this obscene number for such a small patch of land was correctly rejected previously, and this must be rejected again. It is not in line with the town plan, there is insufficient infrastructure in the town, and it is not an appropriate location to cram in more unattractive buildings which will absolutely not help the wider housing crisis. They will inevitably be sold to commuters who can afford the outrageous prices they will be sold for, placing further pressure on local resources.

This town is already being subjected to grotesque overdevelopment - 3,500 homes, more than one for every ten residents in the Northern Arc alone, plus the despicable infill of the nature reserve across the road. This has to stop. Filling in every tiny area of land with overcrowded estates with pokey, unlivable rooms and postage stamp gardens is not what this area needs. It's an embarrassment. These will not be quality homes but they will endanger the much-loved and well-used land adjacent. This must not happen.

Kind regards
