Design Considerations

The proposed garage doors have been selected to complement the architectural character of the existing dwelling. Their black framed glazed appearance reflects the property's existing Crittall-style windows and reinforces the clean, symmetrical lines that are characteristic of the house's 1930s Art Deco design.

Specialist advice was sought from a number of garage door suppliers during the design process. Lakes Doors advise in their design guidance that "a sectional garage door could be ideal for a 1930s home" and note that sectional doors can complement Art Deco architecture.

The proposed doors have therefore been selected not only for their practical performance, but because they provide a sympathetic and cohesive architectural relationship with the existing dwelling, allowing the new garage to sit comfortably alongside the original house.
